It's "Minor Happenings" time here once again, and if you haven't been reading Tony's excellent column this season, shame on you. Because all these kids he's been talking about are going to be playing here in Cleveland if this thing doesn't get turned around pretty quickly. As always, this week's installment is excellent, with a slew of great information on the Indians' minor league affiliates and the team's top orgazational prospects.

"Minor Happenings" covers the important developments and news in the Indians farm system. While most of the information in this report is from my own research and through interviews I have conducted with organizational personnel, some information in this report is collected and summarized from the various news outlets that cover each team.

I'll be in Lake County tonight to see the Captains again and get a look at left-handed starter Ryan Morris for a feature piece that is coming soon. If you missed them, be sure to check out feature pieces on Lake County outfielder Roman Pena
and Buffalo first baseman
Jordan Brown
which posted earlier this week.

Also, I talked to a major league scout for another team last week and got some good insight
on how their organization views some of the Indians prospects.
