The Indians took one of three from the Reds this weekend to stop a seven-game slide. In the week of June 13-19, they won one game. In the week of June 20-26, they won zero games. So you could make the case that this has already been the best week in quite a while after one day. The only downside is that without a day off this week, the Tribe can still lose six games during the week. Can they do it?
