See if you've heard this one before: a team coached by Eric Wedge performed abhorrently in April as the team is off to a slow start at 2-7. In the three games, they had a simple pitching pratfall, thoughtless defense, and an inability to drive in runners in scoring position in the late innings. Right now, each Seattle fan is now recognizing what Cleveland fans have known for years: Chris Gimenez really is That Bald. The B-List suggests a spirited campaign of Completely False Statements.
