Many people are calling this year's NBA Draft the weakest overall draft in two decades. As a result, we will likely have a lot of teams trying to trade out of the first round, just so they can avoid having to give anyone a guaranteed contract. Today, Sam offers up his first mock draft of the year, giving us his thoughts on who the top selections will be, and also who the Cavaliers will select at #30 and #46.

The worst draft since 1989 is likely to result in a lot of teams trying to trade out of the first round, just so they can avoid having to give anyone a guaranteed contract. So this could look entirely different on the night before the actual draft. But don't worry, we'll be updating it then, too.
