We were told that he changed. We were told that he'd grown. We were told that he'd turn over a new leaf.

There's a shih tzu named Muffin that would beg to differ.

Ace reporter Cristin Severance - best known for breaking the evidence-free second-hand story that became urban legend of the kid in the Jets jersey supposedly being tackled by a Browns fan - is on the trail again, this time with much more solid evidence: A guy named Ray from her apartment building swears it's true.

Ray informed Ms. Severance that the hypothetically "reformed" Ben Roethlisberger was once again involved in a case of alleged sexual misconduct, this time with his neighbor's prized pet.

[illegible]