The Indians swept the two-game "series" in KC with a rousing 7-3 walkfest, jumping to an early 3-0 lead and generally coasting to the finish line. After the previous night's 19-1 laugher, this probably felt like a step in the right direction for Sean O'Sullivan's gang.

In today's B-List, Buff tackles the subjects of Carlos Carrasco's command, Carlos Santana's arm, Travis Hafner's health, and Joe Smiff's disturbing hand-buttering fetish.

The Tribe, meanwhile, will head to Chicago for another two-game "series."

Onward!
