

David Regimbal, born and raised in Northeast Ohio, has been a lifelong Cleveland fan. He was four months old when "The Drive" took place, the event that proverbially baptized him by fire in the Cleveland sports experience. He has survived John Cooper, Jose Mesa, Art Modell and LeBron James. He knows he will be asked to survive much more.

While Cleveland is his home, Ohio State is his passion. His dream growing up was to play basketball at Ohio State, but unfortunately, he was built like one of the Olsen twins. That didn't hinder his love for the Buckeyes, and after college, he wrote for multiple blogs and websites covering the Ohio State football team.

Since February of 2010, David has covered Ohio State basketball for TheClevelandFan, providing team breakdowns, game recaps and tournament previews. He also contributes to the Ohio State Football coverage in addition to blogging about the Browns and the Buckeyes for TheClevelandFan's news wire -- Hitting The Fan.
